Jackson Hole High School

“The Jackson Hole High School Photoshop students took the prompt R00TS and interpreted it onto various magazine, self-portrait covers. Some students connected to their past, others to their passions, and some to nature. Students created a new magazine, and some used the layout of existing magazines. The results were a variety of colorful magazine covers!”

NOTION® CLASS ROOTS MAGAZINES
A Japanese high school student in the summer 2007 and introduced long-term together self-control, Japan. Some students decided to start their own magazine, and he to create. Students created a new magazine and we used the concept of creating magazines. The title were a variety of colorful magazine cover!

“The Jackson Hole High School Ceramic students worked in groups to define the prompt ROOTS. They were challenged to work collaboratively and come up with something they were connected to through their group definition of roots. The three-dimensional interpretations are very different and playful. One group did a play on their childhoods and families in small tiles and others connected to the town of Jackson, where they are all from, in a tile compass. Two groups created totem poles from their passions and childhood memories. While another group explored roots as nature connecting the tree to humans.”
